COURSE & CULTURAL ENGAGEMENT

Come alongside and visit, observe and serve in children's programs which focus on those who are facing childhood challenges or trauma. This non-counseling experience is geared for the undergraduate student to learn from the cultural impact of community programs while volunteering in a program setting (camp; missions; pre-school; community engagement). This exposure trip allows for observation, service and learning how the working with children and families can make an impact. Discover the beauty of the island along with the needs of families.

ACADEMIC ENRICHMENT

The goal is to come alongside and serve in children's programs that are working with those who are facing childhood challenges or trauma. This would not be for counseling one on one, but volunteering in a program setting(s) - camp; missions; pre-school; community engagement. These courses are undergraduate and allowing observation, services and learning how the programs are managed in helping children during crisis or challenges will align with the teaching in both courses.
